Biographical Note

Born April 27, 1883, in Concordia, St. Croix, Danish West Indies, Hubert H. Harrison was a brilliant and influential writer, orator, educator, critic, and political activist in Harlem during the early decades of the 20th century. He played unique, signal roles, in what were the largest class radical movement (socialism) and the largest race radical movement (the New Negro/Garvey movement) of his era. Labor and civil rights activist A. Philip Randolph described him as “the father of Harlem radicalism” and historian Joel A. Rogers considered him “the foremost Afro-American intellect of his time” and “one of America’s greatest minds.” Following his December 17, 1927, death due to complications of an appendectomy, Harrison’s important contributions to intellectual and radical thought were much neglected.

In 1900 Harrison moved to New York City where he worked low-paying jobs, attended high school, and became interested in freethought and socialism. His first of many published letters to the editor appeared in the New York Times in 1903. During his first decade in New York the autodidactic Harrison read and wrote constantly and was active in Black intellectual circles at St. Benedict’s and St. Mark’s Lyceums, the White Rose Home, and the Young Men’s Christian Association. He also attended functions of the interracial Sunrise Club as well as Single Tax, Socialist, and Freethought-influenced activities. Beginning in 1907, he made his living as a postal clerk. In 1909 Harrison married Irene Louise (“Lin”) Horton, and the following year their first of five children was born. Their relationship went through difficulties and they periodically lived in separate residences. In 1910 Harrison wrote two letters critical of Booker T. Washington that were published in the New York Sun. Subsequent retaliatory efforts by Washington’s “Tuskegee Machine” cost Harrison his postal employment and for the rest of his life he and his family were burdened with financial problems.

Between 1911 and 1914 Harrison was the leading Black activist, orator, and theoretician in the Socialist Party of New York and a prominent supporter of the Industrial Workers of the World. He made important theoretical contributions by emphasizing that true democracy and equality for African Americans implied a revolution startling to even think of and by advocating that socialists champion the cause of African Americans, that they develop a special appeal to and for African Americans, and that they affirm the duty of all socialists to oppose race prejudice. Socialist Party theory and practice led Harrison to conclude that Party leaders, like organized labor leaders, put the white “Race first and class after.”

During his socialist years and after Harrison pioneered the tradition of Harlem soap-box oratory, which was subsequently carried on by Randolph, Marcus Garvey, Malcolm X, and others. In 1914-15, after leaving the Socialist Party he was active with freethought and other radical secular movements, with free speech and birth control struggles, and with his own “Radical Forum.” In 1915-1916, after writing probing theater reviews and delivering talks on the racial significance of World War I, Harrison concentrated work in Harlem's African American community and led in the development of the New Negro Movement.

In 1917 Harrison founded the first organization (The Liberty League) and the first newspaper (The Voice) of the New Negro Movement--the race conscious, internationalist, mass based movement for "political equality, social justice, civic opportunity, and economic power" that laid the basis for the Garvey movement and contributed significantly to the social and literary climate leading to Alain Locke's well known publication The New Negro. The Liberty League's "race first" program called for enforcement of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, federal anti-lynching legislation, militant resistance to racist attacks, and a political voice. In 1917, Harrison's first book, The Negro and the Nation was published.

Harrison became a nationally recognized Black protest leader in 1918 when he co-chaired (with William Monroe Trotter) the Liberty Congress, the major Black protest effort of WWI. The Congress put forth demands for democracy at home, an end to segregation and disfranchisement, and federal anti-lynching legislation. His wartime protest efforts not only challenged the position taken by W.E.B. DuBois, Joel E. Spingarn, and the NAACP, they also served as precursors to the March on Washington Movement during World War II, which was led by Randolph, and the March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom during the Vietnam War, which was led by Randolph and Martin Luther King, Jr.

In 1919 Harrison served as editor of the New Negro magazine and then, in 1920, he became the principal editor of Marcus Garvey's Negro World, which he re-shaped into the major radical race-conscious, political and literary, publication of the era. While writing for the Negro World Harrison discussed history, politics, literature, theater, poetry, international affairs, religion, and science. He also initiated and developed a "Poetry for the People" section and what he described as the first regular book review section by a Black author in history. In 1920 Harrison's second book, When Africa Awakes, was published. By August of 1920 Harrison was highly critical of Garvey's methods, claims, and actions and he ceased serving as managing editor of the Negro World, though he continued to write articles and editorials for the paper into 1922.

From 1922 until his sudden death in 1927, Harrison, despite periods of ill health, continued to write and lecture prolifically. He published in the Amsterdam News; Interstate Tattler; Modern Quarterly; New Republic; Nation; New York Times; New York Tribune; New York World; and Pittsburgh Courier. He lectured for the New York City Board of Education as staff lecturer from 1922-1926. He also spoke at universities, libraries, before community groups, and on street corners. In 1924, he founded the International Colored Unity League and in 1927 he edited The Voice of the Negro.

Harrison's unexpected death following an appendectomy on December 17, 1927, left behind his widow, four daughters, and a young son. After a massive Harlem funeral he was honored through the creation of the Hubert H. Harrison Memorial Church, which no longer exists. His radicalism on so many issues -- race, class, religion, war, democracy, sexuality, literature and the arts -- and the fact that he was a forthright critic of individuals, organizations, and ideas of influence, were major reasons for his subsequent neglect.

Description

The collection is composed of the personal papers--correspondence, manuscripts, documents, newspaper clippings, diaries, scrapbooks, memorabilia, photographs and books--of Hubert H. Harrison, an early 20th century African American activist, orator, writer, intellectual, and editor. The papers range from his early years in the United States to his death in 1927.

The bulk of the collection is printed material, mostly clippings and books. There is a substantial correspondence series which includes letters by many prominent writers and individuals such as John E. Bruce, Clarence Darrow, W.E.B. DuBois, Claude Mc Kay, H. L. Mencken, Eugene O'Neill, William Pickens, Adam Clayton Powell, Sr., A. Philip Randolph, Andy Razafkeriefo (Razaf), Joel A. Rogers, T. Lothrop Stoddard, William Monroe Trotter, Walter White, Carter G. Woodson, and Monroe N. Work.

Of particular note is the extensive collection of writings, both original manuscripts as well as clippings from newspapers and magazines by Hubert H. Harrison. In addition, there are numerous scrapbooks compiled by Harrison on a wealth of topics, as well as his diaries.

Many unique and important photographs of Harrison and his family, friends, and associates are contained in the collection along with a notable collection of books, evincing the breath and depth of Harrison's reading, as well as his interest in book collecting.

Harrison's active career as a lecturer and speaker is demonstrated by the numerous broadsides and pamphlets.

Series I: Correspondence

The correspondence is arranged in alphabetical order, and covers Harrison's most active years in New York, from 1906 to 1927. Additional correspondence consists of condolence letters sent to Harrison's family following his death. The series includes correspondence regarding lecture engagements, book and article publication, and Harrison's intellectual and personal life. Notable correspondents include John E. Bruce, Clarence Darrow, W.E.B. Du Bois, Claude McKay, H.L. Mencken, Allan Nevins, Eugene O'Neill, William Pickens, Adam Clayton Powell, A. Phillip

Randolph, Andy Razafkeriefo (Razaf), Joel A. Rogers, William Monroe Trotter, Walter White, Carter G. Woodson, and Monroe N. Work.

Sub-series 1.1: A-Z

Sub-series 1.2: Condolence Cards

Series II: Writings by Hubert H. Harrison

The writings are divided into two sub series: Writings by Hubert H. Harrison, arranged alphabetically, and the Sappho and Phaon sub series, spanning the years from 1907 to 1927. Items in these sub series include handwritten manuscripts, typed manuscripts, note fragments, and newspaper clippings.

Sub-series 2.1: A-Z Writings

This sub series contains articles, reviews, notes, and lecture outlines. Additional writings by Hubert H. Harrison are located in the scrapbooks series – Series IV – in the two scrapbooks titled: Early Writings by Hubert H. Harrison and Writings by Hubert H. Harrison Contributed to the Negro World.

Some of the newspaper clippings arranged under writings were originally part of scrapbooks. During processing we selectively removed the original clippings from this series and placed them in their original order as part of scrapbooks, leaving photocopies of the originals in this series. Hence, items that appear as photocopies in this series can be found in their original arrangement in Series IV Diaries and Scrapbooks.

Sub-series 2.2: Sappho and Phaon (unpublished)

The Sappho and Phaon series contains drafts of what is believed to be an unpublished semi-autobiographical collection of love letters, some or all of which were authored, by Hubert H. Harrison. The work was to be called “The Love-Letters of Sappho and Phaon: A Peep into the Privacy of a Royal Romance.”

Series III: Writings by Others

Writings by Others is arranged alphabetically by author and contain student papers, articles about Harrison, and works submitted to Harrison for review.

Series IV: Diaries and Scrapbooks

Sub-series 4.1: Diaries

The Harrison diaries are arranged in chronological order and consist of two volumes kept sporadically from 1907 to 1927, as well as a book of miscellaneous personal notes. Entries concern a range of professional and personal topics including notes on books and theater; anticipated writing projects; lecture drafts; work for newspapers; meetings with other activists; religion; home life; and personal relationships. The diaries provide much insight into Harrison’s life including his break from Christianity, his resignation from the Socialist Party; disillusionment with Marcus Garvey and the UNIA; and his relationships with his wife, Irene. Several sections are written in Latin, French, and codes used by Harrison.

Sub-series 4.2: Subjects Clipped by Hubert H. Harrison

Harrison's numerous scrapbooks reflect his political, historical, and cultural interests, including African Americans; Africa and the West Indies; World War One; labor; longevity and population; China; notable biographies; and The White Man at Home.

Harrison clipped articles from a range of newspapers, sorted them by subject, and pasted them into scrapbooks made from magazines. Most of the scrapbooks are largely empty. Many have been lost, dismantled, or were never assembled. Loose clippings pertaining to a subject have been filed with the corresponding scrapbook. The scrapbooks contain many unique items, including many from African American newspapers that no longer exist.

Sub-series 4.3: The Negro American

The Negro American sub series is arranged in numerical order. The ten surviving scrapbooks in this sub series contain clippings on African American life in the early 20th century.

Sub-series 4.4: Writings and Documents by and about Hubert H. Harrison

These six scrapbooks are arranged alphabetically. They contain documents and memorabilia, such as invitations and lecture programs, as well as clippings of articles written by Harrison.

Two of the scrapbooks: "Early Writings of Hubert H. Harrison" and "Writings of Hubert Harrison Contributed to the Negro World" contain many clippings of published pieces by Harrison. These writing by Harrison are listed directly after the scrapbook in which they appear and are listed in the order in which they appear in the scrapbook. The writings by Harrison in these scrapbooks are fully described in Series III Writings by Hubert H. Harrison.

Series V: Documents

Documents are arranged in alphabetic order. This series contains official and legal documents pertaining to the Harrison family and includes his certificates of baptism in St. Croix and naturalization in the United States, marriage certificate, and a subpoena to the Garvey v. Garvey trial.

Series VI: Photographs

Photographs are arranged Alphabetically by subject (when known). Items in this series are primarily portraits of family, friends, and associates, and include signed portraits of musicians Andy Razafkeriefo (Razaf), Melville Charlton and actress Evelyn Ellis.

Series VII: Memorabilia and Ephemera

This series consists of three dimensional material found with the Harrison papers. It includes a silk flag given to Harrison by the Colonial Dames upon the occasion of his naturalization as an American citizen and a metal plaque that formerly marked the building at 646 Lenox Avenue where Harrison died.

Series VIII: Printed Material

Printed material is arranged in alphabetic order. The series is divided into four sub series.

Sub-series 8.1: Broadsides, Pamphlets, Invitations, Programs, etc.

Broadsides advertising lectures by Harrison; programs for events either organized or attended by Harrison; tickets; pamphlets; and programs, dating from the 1910s and 1920s. The broadsides hint at the range and variety of Harrison's lectures. Many of the items listed herein are located in IV Diaries and Scrapbooks series under 4.4 Writings and Documents by and about Hubert H. Harrison.

Sub-series 8.2: Periodicals

Copies of whole issues of periodicals, arranged in alphabetic order, including copies of the first several issues of Harrison's The New Negro.

Sub-series 8.3: Clippings

The Clippings series contains individual articles clipped from newspapers and other periodicals. Harrison did not arrange these clippings for insertion in scrapbooks and they pertain to a wide variety of topics dating from 1911 to 1927. Harrison dated and identified the source of most of the clippings. Miscellaneous clippings are arranged by year and obituaries and other material clipped after Harrison's death are grouped in one file.

Sub-series 8.4: Books

This series contains books owned by Hubert H. Harrison. Harrison began selling books privately in 1910, and some of his closest friends, including Arthur A. Schomburg, John E. Bruce, Charles C. Seifert, George Young, and Richard B. Moore were Harlem's leading bibliophiles. Of the 109 complete books that remain, many are inscribed by their authors, including Eugene O'Neill, Claude McKay, Max Eastman, David Belasco, James Weldon Johnson, T. Lothrop Stoddard, Walter Everette Hawkins, and J. A. Rogers. Harrison's books When Africa Awakes and The Negro and the Nation are included in this series. Fifteen of the books have been removed from the collection and cataloged for the Rare Book and Manuscript Library rare book collection.

Series IX: Addendum

Photocopies of original letters made by Jeff Perry. Location of originals unknown.
